NOVA remains consistent in our commitment to the values of access, opportunity, student success and excellence, with the mission of delivering world-class in-person and online postsecondary teaching, learning and workforce development to ensure our region and the Commonwealth of Virginia have an educated population and globally competitive workforce.

NOVA's student body growth is greatest among the region's minoritized populations and among families without a tradition of college attendance. NOVA serves more African American students than the state's two public historically black universities combined. In addition, 35% of all Latino students and nearly one-third of all Asian undergraduates in Virginia's public higher education are enrolled at NOVA.

The College recognizes almost 100 active student clubs and organizations at the six campuses. The College recently became one of the first institutions in the region to add a competitive Esports program. Each campus hosts an active student government, and one student serves on the College Board.

NOVA offers many opportunities for highly motivated students. Each campus houses a chapter of the international honor society Phi Theta Kappa, and students may join The National Society of Collegiate Scholars. The Honors Program provides a comprehensive core curriculum and allows students to interact as a community of learners. NOVA students can study abroad through the Office of International Education.

NOVA is a leader among the nation's colleges and universities in serving military-related students. Because of its location, the College serves many of these students — currently there are more than 2,547 active-duty service members, reservists, National Guard personnel, veterans, and their family members enrolled at NOVA. Active-duty service members, veterans and eligible family members now comprise more than 3% of our student population. The Office of Military and Veteran Services (OMVS) supports the success of this unique population of students. In addition to providing on-campus advising and support services, OMVS maintains a presence and provide classes at most of the military installations in the service area. OMVS also coordinates and manages the College's contract and non-credit instruction services provided to military commands in the service region and beyond.
